C.W. "Butch" and Janet "Dobey" Falter Haws

C.W. "Butch" and Janet "Dobey" Falter Haws are honored and excited to be trustees. They grew up in Falls City and are FCHS alums. Since graduating from college (Butch in 1969 from Peru State College and Dobey from UNL in 1970), they have called Lincoln their home. After military service and 13 years of teaching for Lincoln Public Schools, Butch started a manufacturing company which did business internationally for 32 years. Dobey taught elementary Physical Education for 40 years for LPS.

Since retirement, they have been involved in volunteer projects in Peru, Falls City, and Lincoln. They were instrumental in establishing the John Philip Falter Museum in Falls City which highlights works by the world-renowned illustrator, a relative of Dobey's. Their contributions to the Lincoln Community Foundation, the Peru State College Foundation, the Richardson Foundation, the Library and Community Foundation of Richardson County, and the Nebraska State Historical Society Foundation continue to support several charitable organizations.

Announcing Pershing Curriculum

Learning From The Past, Understanding the Present, Discovering the Future

In keeping with the mission of the Pershing Mural Preservation Committee "To honor the history of Nebraskans, to educate future generations about the unique history and topography of Nebraska, and to preserve a magnificent work of art beautifully depicting Nebraska's diverse cultures," the Pershing Mural Curriculum Committee was created. Recognizing the impact the Mural can make as an educational tool and catalyst for learning, academic curriculum focusing on the mosaic has been developed in the areas of art, art history, language arts, history, and historic preservation.
